Meridian is a fast-growing city in the Treasure Valley region of southwestern Idaho, and the area is known for its natural beauty and wide recreational opportunities. Here's a sampler of fun places for you and your family to visit in and around Meridian:

Boise River Greenbelt

Spend an hour or a day enjoying the 25-mile path along the river. Stop at several parks along the way to play or picnic. You can swim, boat, or fish in the river or sit beside it and enjoy the view.

Eagle Island State Park

Located just north of Meridian, this park offers more than 500 acres for swimming, boating, camping, disc golf, fishing, horseback riding, hiking, picnicking, and more.

Settler's Park

This 57-acre park within the city of Meridian has a splash pad, Adventure Island playground, picnic pavilions, fishing ponds, baseball fields, sports courts, and disc golf.

Roaring Springs Water Park

Also situated right in Meridian, Roaring Springs is the largest waterpark in the Pacific Northwest. It offers fun for the whole family, from the Bearfoot Bay children's area to the thrilling Cliffhanger waterslide. You can rent a cabana and purchase food on-site.

Vertical View

Try wall climbing in this immense center with 16,000 square feet of climbing. You'll find climbs suitable for children and adults with climbs up to 65 feet.
